THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1744.

Naples, May 19.

THERE has a Report prevailed here lately, as if his Majesty had resolved to dismiss the Duke de Montalegre, who has been for some time Secretary of State, and first Minister, as well as the Duke de Castro Pignano, who was General and Commander in Chief; but we give no Credit to so ... Story, and which seems to be altogether void ... stability, as well as Foundation. In the late Assembly of the Nobles, which was held for settling the free ... his Majesty, some Opposition was made by ... Caraffa, but he was answered by M. Caponi, ... spoke very plainly. He said that it was no Wonder ... House of Austria had many Friends in a Country ... had been so long under Princes of that Family, ... but for his Part he did not consider the present ... as a Question of Right between the contending ..., but as a Question, whether for the future they ... have any settled Government or not, or whether they should change their Masters, and be, consequently, subject to all the Miseries incident to a Revolution every time Italy became the Seat of War. Upon ... tion it was, that they agreed to the second Grant ...,000 Crowns, and to the Promise of a further ..., in case the Exigencies of his Majesty's Affairs ... require it. It is determined, that the Queen shall ... at Gaeta, that in case she should be brought to ... of a Son, he may be a Native of this Kingdom. ... English Man of War, that was lately upon this ... is sailed to join Admiral Matthews, which has ... us from many Apprehensions.

Venice, May 23. Six thousand of our Troops have ... Orders to hold themselves in Readiness to ... immediately, to join the Austrian Army at Monte ...; and we have already begun to provide Tents ... Soldiers, and Field Equipage for the Officers. ... Majesty the Queen of Hungary has ordered an Account to be taken of all the Natives of this Duchy, ... are at present Slaves to the Turks, in order to ransom and restore them to their Relations. It is strongly ... here, that his Royal Highness the Grand Duke, ... Sovereign, will shortly set out for this City, in order to take upon him the Command of the Army in ... Italy, some go so far as to talk of his being ... Elected King of Naples.

Vienna, March 30. There have passed within these few ... several Corps of regular and irregular Troops by ... City, to join the Army in Bavaria, which occasions much Speculation. The more refined Politicians ... out for the Thing thus; they say that the Number of Men are actually defiling from Bavaria to ... the Rhine, in order to replace those that are to ... from the last mentioned Army to join the confederate Troops in Flanders. The Court has been for ... Time past purchasing some Curiosities of prodigious Price, which occasioned a good deal of Discourse ... those who were not in the Secret; it comes out ..., that these are designed for Presents to the Emperors of all the Russias, to whose Court the Count de ...hasi, who has resided for some Time at Dresden, ... shortly to go with the Title of Ambassador-Extraordinary. We talk of a triple Alliance between the Czarina, the Queen our Sovereign, and the King of Poland; and of another Treaty which is to be speedily ... between the Czarina and the Maritime Powers. ... will shew whether this News be as agreeable to ... as to our Wishes.

Worms, June 6. Upon Advice that the Army of Prince ... was arrived at Sintzheim, and that the Van ... under General Berklau, had reached Wissock, ... whence he has sent a Detachment cross the Necca ... Heidelberg, Lieutenant-General de Montal was despatched on the 4th with the Regiments of Picardy and ... from the Camp at Spire, for this Place, which ... is to be followed by the Lieutenant-General ... de Balincourt, with all the Forces under his Command. On the 5th M. de Coigny ordered five Battalions more from the Camp of Spire, so that there are ... fifteen Battalions, including the Corps of M. de ... and Balincourt, which guard the Rhine from ... to Frisenheim. The Gendarms, and several Squadrons of Horse, arrived the same Day in the Neighbourhood of this City, to reinforce the Regiment of Hopital's Dragoons, and Leiden's Regiment of Hussars, which ... all the French had hereabouts before. We have ... Moment an Account that M. Coigny has ordered ... the Piquets, amounting to 18 Battalions, to march this Afternoon from Spire, in order to occupy Attenstat, and to line the Banks of the Rhine on that Side, which had been left unguarded ever since the Departure of the Dragoons. M. Coigny's Head Quarters are at Spire, and M. de Putange commands the Camp at Germesheim.

Brussels, June 6. The Day before Yesterday we began to suspect that Menin had capitulated, because we no longer heard the Cannon playing; and the next Day, in the Morning, we had certain Information, that the Commanding Officer in that Place had found it necessary, since his Garison was not above a third as strong as it ought to have been, to demand a Capitulation, in order to screen himself, his Troops, and the Inhabitants of the Town, from those dreadful Showers of Bombs which fell every Night. He has made an honourable Capitulation, and the Inhabitants are secured in their Privileges. As we are not able to oppose the Enemy as yet, with equal Forces, in the Field, we make no doubt of their undertaking another Seige immediately, which will be that of Ypres, in which there is also a Dutch Garison, under the Command of the Prince of Hesse-Philipsthal. But, in all probability, this will be more bloody than the last, because there will be now no Occasion to suffer the Enemy to possess themselves of the Glacis, and even to break Ground before they venture to play the Cannon from the Place. They will however have some Assistance towards rendering themselves Masters of Ypres, if the Report should prove true which is just now spread, that M. de Saxe has made himself Master of Fort Knocque, and has it thereby in his Power to hinder any Inundation. Our Army is at present in the Neighbourhood of Oudenard, where we continue to hope they will be speedily reinforc'd, the Dutch having order'd the 20,000 Men encamped at Breda to march next Week; and having, as we are inform'd, recall'd the 6000 Men they have in England, in order to send them hither.
